Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Friday 19 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Cloudy and murky with rain or drizzle.

Today:
A cloudy and murky morning with outbreaks of rain or drizzle, coastal winds slowly easing. Staying overcast with further spots of rain or drizzle during the afternoon, but winds becoming lighter. Feeling cool in the rain. Maximum temperature 9 deg C (48 deg F).

Tonight:
Dreary overnight with persistent cloud and patchy rain or drizzle. Winds will be light allowing patches of hill fog to develop. A little chilly by dawn. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Saturday:
Starting cloudy with further isolated patches of rain or drizzle. Cloud slowly breaking, giving a brighter afternoon, with some spells of warm sunshine. Chilly overnight. Maximum temperature 16 deg C (61 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Generally cloudy but mainly dry through Sunday and Monday, some breaks leading to bright or sunny spells. Further sunny periods through Tuesday. Feeling warmer by day but chilly overnight.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.